

BOOKS on THEOLOGY in O.R.E.

The Futurist Option

Carl Braaten, Robert Jenson

The future of Jesus Christ is the ground of the freedom of the Christian man to take the present seriously. It is fully open to both the burdens and the joys of the present. 25.BRAA

The Theology of Baptism

Sister Lorna Brockett

This book presents within a brief compass something of the riches of baptismal theology as it has developed over the centuries. By its stress on the doctrinal riches and ecumenical implications of baptism this book should help readers to a fuller understanding of baptism and its meaning for Christian life today. 25.BROC

The Study of Theology

Charles Davis

A collection of essays gathered together to gain a wider public for them. 25.DAVI

The Theology of Grace

Cornelius Ernst

This book offers a brief survey of the language and tradition of grace with special emphasis on St. Paul and St. Augustine. In a final chapter an attempt is made to outline a theology of grace in terms of meaning, in the hope that such a theology might do justice to the various insights of the past and respond to the needs of the present. 25.ERNS

Theology for Parents & Teachers

Melvin Farrell, S.S.

Today, many Catholics have nagging, uneasy questions about their changing Church. No book can answer all the questions that have been asked about the Church since Vatican II. This book deals with the questions most frequently asked in an easy-to-read, east-to-understand, informative style. 25.FARR

An Introduction to Catholic Sacramental Theology

Dr. Alexandre Ganoczy

This book moves clearly from 1) a sketch of the historical development of the sacramental concept, to 2) the basic elements in a general theory of the sacrament, to 3) discussion of the individual sacraments. 25.GANO

What Are the Theologians Saying?

Monica Hellwig

A book for Catholic adults who want to understand the changing focus in Catholic theology, but how have no specialized training in theology. 25.HELL

On Being a Christian

Hans Kung

This book is written for all those who, for any reason at all, honestly and sincerely want to know what Christianity, what being a Christian, really means. 25.KUNG

Theology of Confirmation

Austin Milner, O.P.

Outlines the history of the gift of the Holy Spirit in the initiation rites of the early Church. Attention is given to the development of episcopal confirmation as a separate rite. The author's linking of the two main patterns for confirmation in the early Church respectively with the Pauline and Lukan theologies of the Spirit is particularly illuminating and exciting. 25.MILN

Theology of Revelation

Gerald Moran, F.S.C.

Part of a 'Studies in Religious Education' series. 25.MORA

Theology and Revelation

Gerald O'Collins, S.J.

This book studies the divine self-revelation in terms of Biblical, personal and historical categories. The author outlines a theology of revelation as God's promise which calls man's hope to life. 25.OCOL

Fundamentalism: A Catholic Perspective

Thomas O'Meara, O.P.

The author has produced an incisive commentary on the theological and psychological principles which undergird fundamentalism today. This book also offers an alternative to fundamentalism - an alternative nourished by the authentic springs of Christianity as they are preserved within Roman Catholicism.

25.OMEA

The Theology of Eucharist

James Quinn, S.J.

The Eucharist is the heart of the Christian life. It is the sacrament of Christ's presence because it is the sacrament of his sacrifice. It is the summary, the sign and the means of salvation. 25.QUIN

The Lonely Crowd

David Reisman

This book is about social character and the difference in social character between men of different regions, eras, and groups. It considers the ways in which different social character types, once they are formed at the knee of society, are then deployed in work, play, politics and child-rearing activities of society. 25.REIS

The Preaching Word: On the Theology of Proclamation

Otto Semmelroth, SJ

This book provides a theological clarification on the new orientation in the Church's worship. 25.SEMM

A Theology of Celebration

Eugene Walsh, S.S.

A readable re-introduction to Vatican II sacramental theology. 25.WALS

A Theology of Presence

Dick Westley

The thoughtful reader of this book will be empowered to evaluate and rethink traditional attitudes relevant to our present-day lives. For all Catholics who seek to accommodate a love of their country with an active faith-life. 25.WEST

The Theology of the Incarnation

Ralph Woodhal

This is a study of the central event of Christian history. How do the facts of the life of Jesus stand in relation to the development of that community and to the development of its doctrine? Consideration of this question will help show how the Incarnation is situated in theology. 25.WOOD
